AIRPLANES

The future may bring giant winged monsters capable of carrying many people, great air-dromes covering many acres, floating airforts many miles at sea, and around-the-world air-lines. Travel by air has been growing safer and safer in the last few years. In the future, one may be as safe in the air as on the ground.

POEM

Down beside the Cape Fear River
'Neath a sunny southern sky
In our city by the ocean
Stately stands Hanover High.

When the spring has turned to summer
And the year of school is o'er
We who are Hanover's Seniors
Leave her halls for evermore

Leave her, yes, but we shall carry
Knowledge gained within her halls
Ideals cherished by her founders
Friendships framed within her walls.

Though the ways of life may take us
Far beyond the brown Cape Fear
We shall not forget our high school
Or the friends we held so dear.

—ANNE GREEN.

ROADS

What may we expect of tomorrow's roads? They may be giant, six lane, well-lighted ribbons of concrete spanning the continent; or they may be great illuminated underground tubes, built thus to cut the number of accidents caused by wet, icy roads or by dense fogs.

BOATS

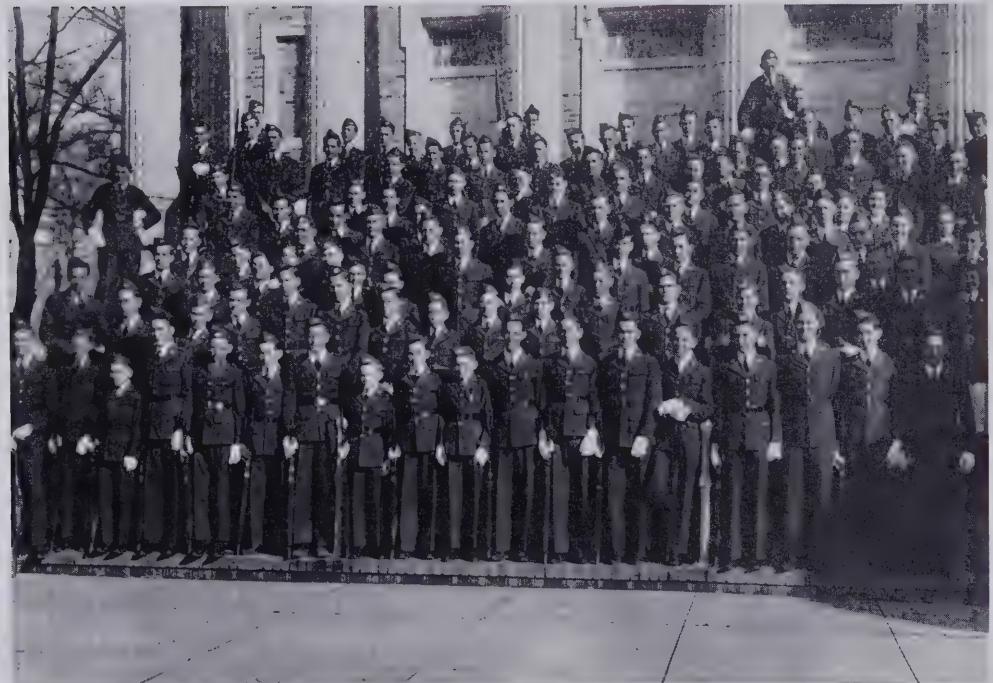

Giant luxury liners, swift freight boats, and yachts of all sizes will continue to ply the seven seas for their respective purposes, but they will be the victims of radical streamlining and greatly increased speed in the future. Three day ocean crossings and round-the-world cruises may be common place things in, shall we say, 1980.

ARCHITECTURE

Architecture of the future will be divided into two classes, the above ground and the under ground. The above ground type will be similar to the present "bar-circle" decoration and design. Under ground building will be of tunnel design with diffused lighting and ventilation.

RADIO AND TELEVISION

In this field lie the greatest possibilities for development. In years to come our posterity may hear and see at the same time wonderful cultural and educational programs from all over the world. They may actually see the news as it occurs. They may even be able to talk with other planets peopled by the earth.

The 1939 Hanoverian

Below we show some informal snapshots of the staff at work and at play, mostly at play; that, however, is well for in the world of tomorrow of which we have dreamed, and which is the theme motif of this year's publication, play will be an important factor. The dreams of the world of tomorrow—and they are rapidly becoming realities — are such that actual "work" in the sense which we know it, will consume little or no time; monstrous machines will do the work, turn out our food, clothing, and houses; leisure time will be left for man to dream of a more perfect world, to seek pleasure for pleasure itself.

The 1939 Hanoverian

The world of tomorrow will bring time for perfection in art and literature. Living will be a pleasure from day to day, living in the sunshine and in the breezes just because they are sunshine and breezes. A new renaissance will come to bring a culmination in art and literature; for the super-men and super-women of tomorrow will have the cultural background of centuries of work and thought on which to draw—and their time can be spent in perfecting the Utopian dreams which man has had through all the ages. And we, in dividing our work with our play, are taking a great step forward to free man from the strenuous tasks of physical labor with which he has beset himself.

SPORTS

There will probably be the same type of sport in the future as there is today. The change will come in the manner of dressing. Rocket racing may be added to our list of sports. The future will not leave baseball, football, basketball, tennis, and other well-liked sports behind.

CLOTHING

Materials, though not elaborate, will be good and rather colorful. Cloaks will be much in evidence. Large shoulder spaces will be used for carrying scientific gadgets. Fountain pen will be attached to the wrist; radio and television sets will be attached to the chest or belt. Improved social conditions will reduce the number of poorly dressed people.

CLASS HISTORY

One of our teachers once remarked, "So often we enjoy ourselves but do not realize it. I wish that each of you would learn to stop now and then and say to himself, 'I'm having a good time' or 'I'm enjoying this.'" Many times during our past years together in high school have we stumbled or grumbled right through some happy experience without even realizing that it was happy. That experience might have been a test, an examination, a task, or practice for a play. At the time perhaps we thought we were unduly burdened, but later with clearer vision we perceived that the experience had strengthened our fellowship and brought us closer together. So today when the fourth year of our joyful school days together approaches its close, we look back and realize all that those days have meant to us.

Let us briefly set forth some of the more outstanding events of our four years together.

Like any freshman, we were shy and self-conscious when we first entered New Hanover High School, because everything was new and different. Indeed we were not at all sure that we were going to like changing our old grammar grade ways. Since the first floor was the lowest and the most devoid of upper classmen, we felt more at home there. As one of our own members expressed it,

*"First you're a freshman
How little you feel
Like a small ant
As he's crushed by a heel."*

For freshmen class officers we elected Grace Sparrow, a newcomer to Wilmington, as president; Jerry Newbold, vice-president; Buren Sidbury, secretary-treasurer; and Steve Peck and Winifred Bagwell, student council representatives. As Grace Sparrow moved away not long after she was elected, the actual responsibility of the presidency devolved upon Jerry Newbold, who executed the office admirably.

The year was important for more reasons than one. First, a new principal, Mr. T. T. Hamilton, came to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Green. Second, the citizens of the county voted on whether or not they would furnish the school children with an extra month of schooling. Some of our classmates delivered speeches over the radio in favor of the supplement, which was carried.

As freshmen, we made many friends, and with each new acquaintance we were drawn closer to our class and our school. For this reason and for the reason that she was a friend of all, it was with the greatest sorrow that we learned of the untimely death of Helen Strange Bridgers, a classmate.

There were many clubs open to us, and we showed our interest in school activities by joining the organizations most suited to our tastes. By the end of the year we felt like a real part of the school and eagerly awaited our term as sophomores.

When we returned to N. H. H. S. in the fall of our second year there, we felt almost like old timers and even found occasions to laugh at the freshmen. Embarking upon this new term with us was Mr. H. M. Roland, who succeeded the late Mr. Ray Funderburk, our beloved Superintendent of Schools. Although the place left by Mr. Funderburk was hard to fill, Mr. Roland proved a worthy successor.

That year Steve Peck was our leader, and the other officers were: vice-president, Gladys Sneeden; secretary-treasurer, Harriet Harrington; student council representatives, Grace Slocum and Robert Calder. Joining more clubs and widening our range of extra-curricula activities, we lost our timidity altogether.

At the beginning of our third year we were deeply saddened when a beloved and dear adviser, Miss Ida Schnirel, passed away. We were glad, however, that a member of our class, Frances Hearn, was selected to pay the students' tribute to her.

Our junior officers were: president, Billy Gibson; vice-president, Jimmy Davis; Secretary-treasurer, Buren Sidbury; student council representatives, Bob Schultz and Gwendolyn Sidbury. We really felt our importance and realized our responsibility by that time. We were a part of practically all school activities—including the clubs, paper and annual staffs, student council, athletics, school dances and entertainments.

There was much to be done that year—rings to be selected and ordered, a motto to be chosen, the seniors to be entertained, annual pictures to be taken, a play to be given, and capable officers for the ensuing year to be elected. All of these tasks were well-performed by capable committees and made considerably easier by the cooperation of all the juniors.

Our motto, "Together and Forward," well characterized our class spirit, for we were successful with all our undertakings. Because of careful planning and forethought on the part of our faculty helpers, the junior-senior prom and the junior play, "Her Incubator Husband," were tremendous successes. We were the first class to elect a chief marshal to serve the school. Proud indeed was everybody to wear the ruby-set ring of our class at the end of the year.

With high hearts we came together again at the beginning of our fourth year. Up the senior steps we walked with a dignity befitting our station. We were the recognized leaders of the school, and we tried to fill this influential position accordingly.

It was a great honor to have forty-eight members of our class elected to the National Honor Society. Twenty of these had been chosen the latter part of their junior year.

The cast of our senior play, "Adam and Eva," worked hard and gave an excellent performance.

For nearly four years our class has worked and played together, shared and lost alike. We have developed and strengthened that common bond of fellowship which will hold us dear to one another throughout our lives. One knows not how much he appreciates a thing until it is severed from him—so with our school days. May they long stand like shining lights beckoning us to a world of rich memories.

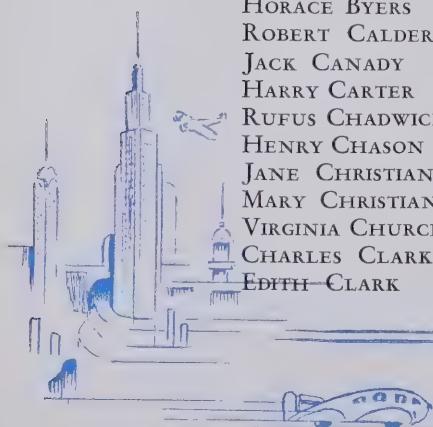

—HARRIET HARRINGTON.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the Senior Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-nine, being of sound mind and healthy body do hereby file this our Last Will and Testament, declaring all others heretofore to be null and void.

Of our boundless estate which we have inherited, earned, or stolen during our High School career, we hereby pronounce disposition:

I, BETH HIGHSITH, leave to thee, ELOISE BETHEL, my flirtatious ways feeling confident that you will, with your own talent, be the siren of the school.

I, WILLIAM GIBSON, do will to WARREN PENNINGTON my executive and political ability which I enjoyed so much and feel certain you will, with all of your vim and vigor, use to the best of advantage.

I, BETTY HENDERSON, hereby will my knowledge of "How to Win Friends and Influence People" to thee, MARTHA ANN MORRIS, feeling confident that you will, with your winsome ways, be the most influential girl in the rising Senior Class.

I, BUREN SIDBURY, leave my dependability, poise, pep, and personality to thee, JACK McEACHERN.

We, JANET DIEHL and ALEX TRASK, do leave to thee, ANNIE GRACE PARKER and JIMMIE SIMPKINS, our mischievous and talkative ways, (and to thee O! FACULTY our sympathy).

I, LUCY CORBETT, do bequeath my sophistication to thee, JULIE SPRUNT.

I, MARJORIE WATERS, do will to thee, MARY ELEANOR ROBESON, my school spirit and vivacious ways.

I, ROBERT CALDER, do bequeath my happy go lucky and carefree nature to DICK CANTWELL, who is quite capable of accepting same.

The 1939 Hanoverian

I, RANDALL G. DAVIS, do will my graceful figure to thee, SANKY LEE BLANTON, and I feel quite sure you will carry it as well as I have mine.

I, STEVE PECK, do will my military ability to thee, ROBERT STROUP.

We, BETTY LEWIS and JIMMY SHIMER, leave our athletic ability to thee, BILLY BONEY and FLORENCE DAVIS.

I, EDNA HUCKS, do bequeath my dramatic skill to thee, ANN NEWBOLD.

I, MARY B. HALL, leave to thee, CHARLOTTE RICKMAN, my talent for singing and feel confident that you will make a great radio singer.

I, SILVY ANN PRESSON, do will to thee, MELANIE GOODMAN, my appealing charm.

I, HARRIET HARRINGTON, do bequeath to thee, LOUISE HOOPER, my scholastic ability.

In witness hereof, we, the Class of '39, affix our Seal and Signature, this the 10th day of March in the year of our Lord, Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-nine.
